County activates Emergency Operation Center

Holcomb issues stay at home order, city postpones festivals

COURIER STAFF REPORT

Jefferson County's Emergency Management Agency Tuesday morning activated the county's Emergency Operation Center in support of the county Health Department's response to the novel coronavirus (COVID-19) outbreak and Gov. Eric Holcomb's executive order to stay home that went into effect at midnight Wednesday.

All Indiana residents are asked to stay in their homes except for "essentials," which include getting groceries and picking up takeout and delivery. Nonessential businesses are to close to the public, and those who can work from home are instructed to do so. (What residents can and cannot do is detailed in a story on Page A2).

EMA Executive Director Troy Morgan activated the EOC to Level IV — which establishes daily operations — at 7 a.m. The center now will be staffed daily with enhanced hours to meet the needs of the county health department and local residents.

Morgan said the primary mission at this time is dissemination of information and that a joint information center is being established to conduct twice-weekly briefings involving agencies that are key to the county's response to the COVID-19 pandemic. He said focus of the briefings will be to provide unified presentation

Stay home order may trigger increase in domestic violence

By COLLIN OVERTON
Courier staff writer

While home may seem like the safest place to be during a pandemic, that may not be the case for regular victims of domestic abuse or members of certain households when tempers run hot.

Hoosiers will be spending a lot more time indoors following Monday's order by Gov. Eric Holcomb to stay home except for essential work or essential errands, like caring for a family member, through April 7. But for some, that won't necessarily be a good thing, said Jane Yorn, executive director of Safe Passage, a nonprofit dealing with victims of domestic violence and sexual assault in six southeast Indiana counties.

"When people could go to work and go to school, that was giving everyone kind of a respite time," Yorn said. "But now, those supports are being stripped away from these families too — they're already so fragile."

Tempers boiled over last Saturday night in Trimble County, when Timo-

Hoffmire guilty of felony battery

SPECIAL TO THE COURIER

A Madison man has been found guilty of battery causing serious bodily injury, a Level 5 felony, with a habitual felony offender sentence enhancement, after a trial in Jefferson County Circuit Court that began on March 18 and concluded March 20.

Jonathan Hoffmire, 35, Madison, was found guilty in the severe beating of Cory Dade on Jan. 16 near Ivy Tech Drive and Regatta Court. Witnesses testified seeing Hoffmire stomp Dade's head several times, causing head injuries that left him in intensive care for more than three weeks.

"Anytime we have a trial, we methodically present evidence with the hope of obtaining an outcome that will hold a convicted offender accountable and bring justice for the victim," said Chief Deputy Prosecutor Blaine Goode. "In this case, the battery inflicted by Mr. Hoffmire on the victim was found to have resulted in a severe head injury that caused incapacitation to the point of hospitalization in the Intensive Care Unit at University of Louisville Hospital for 23 days. I believe this verdict satisfies the accountability and justice sought."

Police officers were dispatched to an area near Ivy Tech Drive and Regatta Court, due to a report of a male subject rolling around on the ground injured. The caller reported that another male subject nearby with facial injuries was walking away from the area, wearing a red hoodie, a black jacket and blue jeans.

As officers approached the scene, they were directed to Dade by a female and found him lying in the grass, semi-conscious. Dade's speech was unintelligible and he was bleeding heavily from the nose and mouth and had noticeable swelling around both eyes and on both cheeks and was having difficulty responding to the officer's questions.

EMS arrived on scene, transported Dade to King's Daughters' Hospital for a suspected head injury and he was immediately sent by stat flight to University of Louisville Hospital due to the severity of his injuries.

A witness told police she and her boyfriend observed a portion of the

First remote HDBR meeting leads to some confusion for board members

By MARK CAMPBELL
Courier staff writer

Madison's Historic District Board of Review held the city's first public meeting Monday using remote technology to allow board members to participate outside of a traditional gathering, with business getting done but not without some complications and confusion along the way.

In an effort to comply with guidelines on social distancing during the current COVID-19 epidemic, the board meet under guidelines established by an executive order signed by Gov. Eric Holcomb and adopted by Madison City Council last week allowing meetings to be held with staff and as little as one council or board member present as long as a quorum of other board members can be achieved through remote video or telephone conferencing.

Under those guidelines, Monday's two-hour session included City Planner-Preservation Coordinator Nicole Schell and Building Inspector Brian Martin on hand as staff members and HDBR Chairman Josh Wilber presiding in the city council chambers. Board member Owen McCall joined the meeting later after experiencing connectivity issues remotely while board attorney Devon Sharpe and other board members listened in and/or watched remotely by phone, computer or on the livestream broadcast by Madison TV 15.

With Madison City Hall and all government buildings on lockdown and closed to the public except by appointment, only a few people were allowed inside the meeting and chairs were spaced several feet apart to observe social distancing.

The board approved three applications including replacement of a second story porch and window replacement at 411 Jefferson St., door replacement at 624 W. third St., and demolition of a historically insignificant and dilapidated storage structure on the back lot of 310 Jefferson St. while an extension was granted on an application at the former Victoria Inn at 801 E. Main St.

Later in the meeting the board also heard a report from Schell that unapproved fencing previously installed at

Spring Cleaning

City of Madison employee Greg Smithers opens the valve of a water hydrant to flush sediment from the main at Second and Vernon streets in downtown Madison Tuesday morning (above) and later prepares to close the valve after the hydrant had been flushed clean. Smithers, a storm water department employee who was helping out the water department, said the annual flushing operation is conducted throughout the city to remove sediment and check proper function of all hydrants as a fire safety precaution. He said the process requires flushing about 300 to 500 gallons of water per hydrant — however much it takes for the water to begin running clear. According to the water department, there are about 650 hydrants in the city between the downtown and hilltop areas and eventually all are flushed annually. (Courier staff photos by Mark Campbell)

Indiana Stay-At-Home Order Frequently Asked Questions

INDIANAPOLIS – Governor Eric J. Holcomb delivered a statewide address Monday to order that Hoosiers remain in their homes beginning Tuesday except when they are at work or for permitted activities, such as taking care of others, obtaining necessary supplies, and for health and safety.

The order is scheduled to end at 11:59 p.m. on Monday, April 6, but could be extended if the outbreak warrants longer.

The Stay-At-Home Order applies to the entire state of Indiana and unless you work for an essential business or are doing an essential activity, you must stay home.

Here are some frequently asked questions and answers concerning the order as provided by the Governor's Office.

Is this mandatory or a recommendation?

This order is mandatory. For the safety of all Hoosiers, people must stay home and prevent the spread of COVID-19.

How will this order be enforced?

Staying home is critical to reducing the spread of COVID-19 in your community. Adhering to the order will save lives, and it is the responsibility of every Hoosier to do their part. However, if the order is not followed, the Indiana State Police will work with local law enforcement to enforce this order. The Indiana State Department of Health and the Alcohol and Tobacco Commission will enforce the restaurant and bar restrictions.

Will the Indiana National Guard enforce this order?

No. The Indiana National Guard is aiding in planning, preparation and logistics with other state agencies. For example, the Indiana National Guard assists in distributing hospital supplies the state receives.

What is an essential business?

Essential businesses and services include but are not limited to grocery stores, pharmacies, gas stations, police stations, fire stations, hospitals, doctor's offices, health care facilities, garbage pickup, public transit, and public service hotlines such as SNAP and HIP 2.0.

A list can be found in the Governor's executive order at coronavirus.in.gov.

What is an essential activity?

Essential activities include but are not limited to activities for health and safety, necessary supplies and services, outdoor activity, certain types of essential work, and to take care of others. A list can be found in the Governor's executive order at coronavirus.in.gov.

I work for an essential business. Will I be allowed to travel to and from work?

Law enforcement will not be stopping drivers on their way to and from work, traveling for an essential activity such as going to the grocery store, or just taking a walk.

Will the grocery store/pharmacy be open?

Yes, grocery stores and pharmacies are essential services.

Can I still order take out/delivery from restaurants and bars?

Yes, restaurants and bars can continue to provide takeout and delivery, but should be closed to dine-in patrons.

Can I get my groceries delivered? Can I still get my online orders delivered?

Yes, you can still receive packages, get groceries delivered, and get meals delivered.

How can I get medical care?

If you develop symptoms such as fever, cough and/or difficulty breathing, and have been in close contact with a person known to have COVID-19 or have recently traveled from an area with ongoing spread of COVID-19, stay home and call your healthcare provider.

If you suspected you have COVID-19, please call the healthcare provider in advance so that proper precautions can be taken to limit further transmission. Older patients and individuals who have severe underlying medical conditions or are immunocompromised should contact their healthcare provider early, even if their illness is mild.

If you have severe symptoms, such as persistent pain or pressure in the chest, new confusion or inability to arouse, or bluish lips or face, contact your healthcare provider or emergency room and seek care immediately, but please call in advance if possible. Your doctor will determine if you have signs and symptoms of COVID-19 and whether you should be tested.

Nonessential medical care such as eye exams and teeth-cleaning should be postponed. When possible, health care visits should be done remotely. Contact your health care provider to see what telehealth services they provide.

What is the guidance for individuals with intellectual and developmental disabilities?

State-operated developmental centers, intermediate care facilities for individuals with developmental disabilities and community integrated living arrangements will continue to provide care. All in-home direct care staff are considered essential staff and should continue to support individuals in the home setting.

If you have specific questions about your support and services, reach out to your provider or individual service coordination agency.

What if I still have to go to work?

You should stay home unless your work is an essential function such as a health care provider, grocery store clerk or first responder. If you have been designated essential by your employer, you should continue to go to work and practice social distancing. A list of essential businesses can be found in the Governor's executive order at coronavirus.in.gov.

What if I think my business should be closed, but they're still asking me to report to work?

Essential businesses will remain open during the stay-at-home order to provide services that are vital to the lives of Hoosiers. If you believe your business is nonessential but still are being asked to show up to work, you may discuss it with your employer.

A certain service is essential for me, but the governor didn't include it. What do I do?

The stay-at-home order was issued to protect the health, safety and well-being of Hoosiers. Although some businesses such as fitness centers and salons will be closed, essential services will always be available. For a list of essential businesses that will continue to operate during the order, visit coronavirus.in.gov.

Will public transportation, ride-sharing and taxis continue?

Public transportation, ride-sharing and taxis should only be used for essential travel.

Will roads in Indiana be closed?

No, the roads will remain open. You should only travel if it is for your health or essential work.

Can I still take a plane out of Indiana?

Planes and other types of transportation should be used for essential travel.

What if my home is not a safe environment?

If it is not safe for you to remain home, you are able and encouraged to find another safe place to stay during this order. Please reach out so someone can help. You can call the domestic violence hotline at 1-800-799-SAFE or your local law enforcement.

What about homeless people who cannot stay at home?

The administration wants to protect the health and safety of all Hoosiers, regardless of where they live. State agencies are partnering with community organizations to ensure the homeless population has safe shelter.

Can I visit friends and family?

For your safety, as well as the safety of all Hoosiers, you should remain at home to help fight the spread of COVID-19. You may visit family members who need medical or other essential assistance, such as ensuring an adequate food supply.

Can I walk my dog or go to the veterinarian?

Can I take my kids to the park?

State parks remain open, but welcome centers, inns and other buildings are closed. Families will be able to go outside and take a walk, run or bike ride, but they should continue to practice social distancing by remaining 6 feet away from other people. Playgrounds are closed because they pose a high risk of increasing spreading the virus.

Can I attend a religious service?

Large gatherings, including church services, will be canceled to slow the spread of COVID-19. Religious leaders are encouraged to continue livestreaming services while practicing social distancing with one another.

Can I leave my home to exercise?

and release of all information there while refraining from releasing virus specific information elsewhere. Jefferson County Health Officer Dr. John Hossler, Jefferson County Health Administrator Tammy Monroe and other key players in the response are expected to provide reports.

The first briefing is scheduled for 10 a.m. Friday at the Jefferson County Public Safety Center, 620 Green Road, on Madison's hilltop. However, the Public Safety Center is a county building and, by order of the Jefferson County Commissioners, is currently closed to the public. In addition to officials presenting information, members of the media will be invited to broadcast, record and report on the briefings and developments related to the COVID-19 outbreak, said Morgan, noting that all other means will be used to disseminate the information from these briefings as widely as possible.

The Indiana State Department of Health Wednesday reported 102 new positive cases of COVID-19, bringing to 477 the number of Hoosiers diagnosed through ISDH, the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention and private laboratories. So far 14 Hoosiers have died, including one in nearby Scott County.

A total of 3,356 tests have been reported to ISDH through Wednesday morning, up from 1,960 on Monday. The first new cases were also reported in Ohio and Dearborn counties, meaning that Jefferson and Switzerland counties are the lone remaining counties in the southeast part of the state without confirmed cases.

However, Hossler said Tuesday he has no doubt that there are cases of coronavirus in Jefferson County, but due to the shortage of test kits they are simply going undiagnosed. Once more test kits and testing become available, he expects the county to begin reporting positive cases but hopes the county can avoid a communal outbreak.

Hossler said the key to accomplishing that is for local residents and businesses to remain vigilant in precautions like hand washing, social distancing and practicing good sanitation as well as to avoid gathering in groups. He said staying home now and for the foreseeable future, as the governor has ordered, could help prevent a wider spread of the virus and assist with the control of the illness locally.

Meanwhile, the City of Madison has decided to postpone all festivals and events scheduled during the next 60 days in the best interest of the public.

The decision came after a discussion with Visit Madison, the Madison Area Chamber of Commerce, Madison Main Street Program, and local festival board presidents. The city is also encouraging festival boards to delay making non-refundable deposits for the near future.

"We understand our community looks forward to the many events and festivals our city has to offer. Our restaurant and small business owners, in particular, look forward to the extra foot-traffic during festival season; however, community safety and curbing the spread must be our top priority during this time. This was a difficult decision, but a precaution we must take," Mayor Bob Courtney said.

"For now, this situation is our reality. It is scary and confusing, but as a community, we see people coming together as never before. Madison will continue to support each other because that is what the people of Madison do. The staff at Visit Madison will work hard to support our tourism partners and to create new ways to introduce and persuade visitors to come and experience the 'magic of Madison.' Our best days are ahead of us. Madison Indiana will lead the way in reintroducing southern Indiana to friends, family, and visitors," said Tawana Thomas, executive director of Visit Madison.

The city will continue to monitor the situation and remain in contact with all parties involved in festivals and events planning and evaluate the decision as new information becomes available. Should the group gathering and social distancing restrictions be lifted, events may go on as planned.

Hunter's NCAA dreams shattered by COVID-19

By ROB LAFARY
Courier Staff Writer
sports@madisoncourier.com

Just hours away from a career-defining moment, Hanover track and field star Kenna Hunter sat lounging at a hotel in Winston-Salem, North Carolina waiting to make her first appearance in the NCAA Division III Indoor Track and Field Championships. As far as she knew, everything was going according to plan.

But unbeknownst to her, Hunter would soon become a part of what has been an unprecedented time in the wide world of sports on every level. By the end of that Thursday night on March 12, the COVID-19 pandemic put a screeching halt to athletics all over the world and the NCAA had canceled all events, including the Indoor Nationals.

The cancellation put an end to Hunter's successful collegiate career and the possibility of much greater accolades on the national stage.

"I was in Winston-Salem with my coach the night before when I found out," Hunter said. "At first I was speechless and asked if it was just some kind of joke. Ten minutes later my family arrived so having their support at that time was greatly appreciated."

Just one week prior, Hunter had punched her ticket to the national championship meet after a record-setting performance at the Polar Bear Qualifier at Ohio Northern University. The senior dominated in the pentathlon event, recording a combined 3,294 points in five events that included her personal record of 9.61 seconds in the 60-meter hurdles event that earned her a third-place finish.

In other pentathlon events, Hunter finished first in the high jump at 1.61 meters and also scored top honors in the 800-meter run in a time of 2:26.38. She rounded out with a pair of fourth place finishes in the shot put and long jump events.

Her point total narrowly bested the 2017 school mark set by former Hanover standout and teammate Savannah Hubbard. Hubbard, a Southwestern High School graduate and an NCAA qualifier herself in the pentathlon, held the record with 3,243 points. Hunter's mark placed her among the Top 22 in the national rankings, earning her a spot in the national championship meet

But nobody will never know if Hunter could surpass the national accomplishments of Hubbard's senior season that included appearances in both the indoor and outdoor national championships, the first athlete to do so in Hanover program history. Not only did Hunter's bubble burst on a Thursday night in Winston-Salem, but the rest of her senior season came to a sudden end just days later when it was announced that Hanover, alongside many other schools, would cancel its entire spring sports season.

The cancellation includes the outdoor track and field season where Hunter and her Panther teammates were to piggyback off the success of the indoor season, which included individual accomplishments and a Heartland Collegiate Athletic Conference championship. Making matters worse, Hunter's final farewell to teammates and classmates would also be put on hold, at least in-person.

Hanover and hundreds of other schools also fell victim to the COVID-19 pandemic, ending all on-campus classes and forcing the rest of the academic year to be finished online from home. Students had until March 22 to pack their belongings and return to their respective hometowns.

"I started crying as soon as school and my season were canceled," Hunter said of hearing the news. "I face-timed my roommates at Hanover and we cried together. My life as an athlete is over. I love running and competing so I will work out for myself but my athletic career is over. I still have to complete my coursework online but it is still up in the air on how that will be conducted."

As NCAA institutions continue to deal with the aftermath of cancellations to events and seasons, the trending topic in recent weeks has been the discussion of giving senior student-athletes in spring sports an additional year of eligibility to make up for a lost season. The NCAA Division I committee is set to make a vote on March 30 and the possibility lies for that vote to trickle down.

Although a long shot for such NCAA Division III schools like Hanover, which do not give out athletic scholarships to offer that extra year of eligibility, Hunter again made it clear that her time in the Hanover blue and red has come to a close and that it was time to finish out her academic obligations and move into the real world. However, that pursuit doesn't come before reflecting on what the college has done for her as a student-athlete.

"As a Division III athlete no athletic scholarships are given and Hanover is an expensive school. I'll have my degree in May so there is no reason to return to school," Hunter said. "I love Hanover and the teammates I left behind and I wouldn't want to compete for another school either. Hanover gave me an amazing four years. I learned a great deal about myself and my capabilities. I met wonderful people who will be my friends for life, who inspire me to be the best version of myself. I have so many great memories as an athlete but truly coming home from nationals to my teammates knowing our time together was over and just having their support was a great memory."

Hunter, a Mooresville native and graduate of Monrovia High School, finished her final weeks of the indoor track and field season with four championships at the HCAC Indoor Championship meet and was the league's final HCAC Indoor Track and Field Athlete of the Week. This week she was tabbed as a member of the HCAC Tom Bohlsen All-Academic Team.

Hunter has already started the process of life after college and is pursuing a job in the environmental and geological fields following graduation in May.

The Madison-Jefferson County Animal Shelter currently has 11 dogs or puppies, and 12 cats or kittens available. Pictures of additional pets waiting for adoption can be viewed at www.sisaveapet.com

In light of COVID-19, the Jefferson County Animal Shelter will only take appointments and will not accept walk-in customers. To request an appointment, email animal.shelter39@jeffersoncounty.in.gov

All cats and kittens are $45 off unless they are already spayed or neutered. Discount is courtesy of the Animal Shelter and the Jefferson County Humane Society.

Volunteers are always welcome at the shelter. Individuals must be at least 16 years old to volunteer. Volunteers can help with everyday cleaning, answering phones, and exercising the pets. Contact the shelter for details.

The shelter is a registered organization with the Kroger Community Rewards program. To support the shelter, register a Kroger card at www.krogercommunityrewards.com and enter FL919.

Support the shelter while walking your dog. Use the "Walk for a Dog" or "Woof-Trax" app available through the App Store or Google Play. For each mile walked, a donation is made to the shelter.

GRUMPY

Grumpy is a 10-year-old declawed female who fits her name very well. She is a little standoffish at the moment, but she is all talk and no bite. She likes to be held and get her head scratched. Her owner died, so she and her sister, Snow White, are currently looking for a new furever home.

SNOW WHITE

Snow White is a 10-year-old declawed female who is pretty outgoing. She is an all white cat who loves to be petted and held. The shelter staff brushes her hair, so she no longer has any mats. She was brought in with Grumpy, so both are currently looking for a furever home.

A list of needed items can be found on the shelter website. Donations can be mailed to 2727 Hannah Drive, Madison, IN 47250 or dropped off during shelter hours. The shelter also accepts aluminum and steel cans, which are recycled and the proceeds put toward the medical fund. The shelter asks that aluminum and steel donations be separated. Steel cans should also be rinsed before they are dropped off. Cans can be dropped off at anytime in a bin located on the east side of the shelter.

Those with missing pets can stop by the shelter, call or email a complete description of the pet, when and where it was last seen, the owner's name and contact information, and a picture of the pet. Pets are held for three days before they are made available for adoption.

Animals should not be abandoned outside of the shelter or dropped off at the shelter after hours.

Monday's meeting of the City of Madison's Historic District Board of Review was the city's first held since Madison City Council adopted an ordinance allowing meetings to be held with most board members monitoring the business by video or audio conferencing from off site to help protect against the spread of the COVID-19 virus. Only staff members and one board member are required to be present with other members participating from home. City Planner-Preservation Coordinator Nicole Schell (left) and HDBR Chairman Josh Wilber (center) were eventually joined by board member Owen McCall (right) after he experienced problems connecting to the conference video and calls at home. The group used video, phone calls, texts and instant messaging to push through the agenda. (Courier staff photo by Mark Campbell)

Trilogy Health Services' River Terrace Health Campus will be removed and replaced with 3-foot picket fencing painted white, as per city guidelines.

Communications then got more complicated and confusing when the board began consideration of a resolution temporarily amending the HDBR Rules of Procedure to allow more applications to be handled by staff during the COVID-19 crisis. When consideration of applications followed established procedures for presentation of facts, questions, comments and findings the meeting ran more smoothly, but during discussions on the resolution and how board members wanted to see the process streamlined required more conversation, there was more confusion as audio/video delays and connectivity issues left some members unsure on what they were actually voting for in the end.

The board adopted the resolution by a 4-2 vote with one member absent but the two members who cast opposing votes — Betsy Lyman and Thomas Stark — both noted they had misunderstood that the vote was on the resolution rather than amendments to the resolution proposal. Lyman had actually voted in opposition to the resolution and Wilber allowed Stark to change his vote from "yes" to "no" with the understanding that the measure still passed 4-2.

As adopted, the resolution gives temporary approval for applications before the HDBR to be approved or denied after being reviewed by staff and Wilber. However, there will be a 15-day period after applications are filed allowing previously established notification of intent and giving neighboring property owners or other interested individuals time to comment on applications prior to a decision.

Lyman had argued for a 30-day comment period and for the group's vice chairman to also serve on the application review panel and vote on decisions.

Mike Pittman, new to the board this year and a property owner who has taken applications before the board in the past, said the process is already too long and complicated and that staff members are qualified to review applications based on established guidelines and approve or deny applications. He said additional review by the board — or a longer comment period — just delays projects and costs property owners money by putting work on hold.

While the resolution approved Monday will only be in effect during the suspension of normal city business due to the COVID-19 crisis, the HDBR has said it plans to look at ways to streamline the city's application process this year but was delaying that discussion until Mayor Bob Courtney and city council can consider possible revisions to city ordinances that could impact HDBR's scope and authority.

Wilber said Monday's resolution will stand for now but instructed staff members to have Sharpe review the wording for legality. He also said that if any problems arise from Monday's decision that the board can revisit the matter at its next meeting but added that it is his hope that by then the city will have returned to its normal meeting procedures.

Afterwards, Wilber said he thought the meeting went well considering the technological issues the group had to overcome in its first venture into remote participation but that the process could be better. He also noted that the resolution will allow staff, board members and applicants a safer way to do business during the current virus crisis without delaying work property owners want to accomplish this spring and summer and possibly serve as an indicator of how the group could go about turning more decisions over to staff members.

"This should be a good experiment to see how it goes with staff handling the applications," Wilber said.

•Domestic

thy Luke Webster, 48, allegedly got into a verbal altercation with a family member that led to the fatal shooting of Webster.

Police records from this week and last weekend in Jefferson County showed three domestic incidents, one domestic assault, a protective order violation and a recorded instance of child abuse. Those numbers could spike in the coming days, said Madison Police Chief John Wallace.

It usually takes a few days to set in, but in events where people are forced to stay home like snowstorms or natural disasters, agitation rises and situations can escalate, Wallace said. Calls also tend to go up in the summer due to more people being outside and increased alcohol consumption, he said.

It's something he and other law enforcement agencies will have to monitor as the community grapples with how to best stay safe from COVID-19 and each other.

"With this virus, everything else is just secondary," Wallace said. "The concern is these are just uncharted waters, but that's law enforcement for you."

Such cases are far from isolated incidents, Yorn pointed out. China reported three times the normal amount of domestic calls at the height of its coronavirus outbreak, and New Orleans experienced a 98% spike in domestic violence in the aftermath of Hurricane Katrina, she said.

More than 10 million people experience domestic violence in the U.S. each year, according to the National Coalition Against Domestic Violence. There is research to suggest a link between domestic violence and natural disasters; a 1997 study titled "Hurricane Andrew: Ethnicity, Gender, and the Sociology of Disasters" found that after Hurricane Andrew, a Category 5 storm that hit South Florida in 1992, calls to Miami's domestic abuse hotline increased by 50%.

Yorn's own organization saw a spike in calls last week — although that has since leveled out — and will soon launch an awareness campaign to reach people stranded in unsafe homes. She couldn't recall the exact number of calls, but said Safe Passage usually gets more than 700 a year from victims in Franklin, Ripley, Dearborn, Ohio, Switzerland and Jefferson counties.

People can still access Safe Passage's helpline 24 hours a day at 1-877-733-1990 and find resources on their webpage and Facebook, she said.

"Mostly it's about planning, because when someone tries to leave abuse it's always the most dangerous time. And so programming 911 into your cell phone and having a plan of action, thinking ahead to maybe two or three places that you could flee if you needed during an emergency, and then calling us to work out the details of getting you longer-term safety," Yorn recommended.

Victims should look for trusted people they can stay with for initial support if safe, like a family member or friend, then gather belongings like credit cards, driver's licenses, medications and things for any children in a secure place ahead of time. It also helps to have an escape plan if necessary, knowing all the entrances and exits of your house, Yorn said.

"When you add on the extra tensions of the situations we have in our country right now with the isolation and the economic strain on already fragile individuals, those tensions really rise and it escalates far more quickly. And that's where people who have been sitting on the edge and thinking and telling themselves 'it's not really that bad' — that's where we're afraid we're going to really see that increase, that escalation happening because of the severe tensions of our current crisis," Yorn said.

Safe Passage itself has started to schedule staff differently and get more resources prepared, having closed its five satellite offices to the public, including the Safe Place office in Madison.

Its 30-bed emergency shelter in Batesville is already at capacity, doing advanced sanitation, restricting visitors and asking volunteers not to come in, Yorn said. This is a challenge on top of staffing the shelter 24 hours a day.

"Our clients can't go out to work and their children can't go to school, so we get to see this pretty firsthand," she said.

Jefferson County Prosecutor David Sutter said Monday that protective hearings will still proceed while the court schedule is altered; people can still request them from the clerk's office by calling and requesting a copy.

"If someone is incarcerated on a domestic violence case, they're still going to have an initial hearing. We will still be at said hearing and we'll still be able to request no contact orders as conditions of bond during that time," he said.

Although civil, child support, traffic court and criminal cases for non-incarcerated cases are not being processed at the same rate as normal, protective orders are, he said.

"Certainly in situations where people are going to be at home more or around each other more, there can be some increased conflict and we'll certainly take a look at those trends as they come. But right now, we are actively dealing with every case that comes through our office," Sutter said.

incident and described a man stomping someone's head as the person lay on the ground. She said they drove nearby to see if they could help the man on the ground and Hoffmire approached them and asked for a favor, which they declined. The witnesses said Hoffmire then took the victim's hat and black jacket.

The witness called 911, giving a description of what they had observed, and officers from the Madison Police Department and Jefferson County Sheriff's Department arrived within two minutes, locating the suspect, Jonathan Hoffmire, near the intersection of Regatta Court and Kennedy Drive dressed as described by witnesses with his face bleeding. Hoffmire was also transported to King's Daughter's Hospital, where he was treated for minor injuries.

During a statement to police, as well as during testimony at his trial, Hoffmire alleged that he was acting in self-defense when Dade sustained the life-threatening injuries. Goode, however, pointed to a variety of evidence to contradict the self-defense claim.

In addition to the guilty conviction for battery, Hoffmire was also determined to be a habitual offender based prior felony convictions. Hoffmire, who will be sentenced at a later date, faces up to 12 years in prison.

Prosecutor David Sutter and Chief Deputy Goode credited the 911 callers and quick response of police and EMS with saving Dade's life. Citing testimony from the trauma surgeon who was working the emergency room when Dade arrived, Sutter stated, "Mr. Dade would have perished if not for the quick response of everyone involved."

BRIDGE

DIFFERENT LEADS; DIFFERENT RESULTS

Ralph Waldo Emerson wrote, "The louder he talked of his honor, the faster we counted our spoons."

For a bridge player, the more often he plays his honor cards, the more winning tricks he can count.

When I am teaching inexperienced players about signaling on defense, the first class is usually about playing spot cards -- high-low to encourage and low-high to discourage. But the next week I encourage playing honor cards whenever possible. Even the sleepiest of partners will notice an honor card appearing unexpectedly on the table.

There are several reasons for putting up an honor card when you could have played a spot card. This three-no-trump deal features one of the rarest. What was the key honor play after West led the spade queen to South's king?

Declarer had eight top tricks: two spades, three hearts and three diamonds. He had to establish a club trick. He was in danger only if West had five spades and a high club after both of South's spade honors had been removed.

To try to make it hard for the opponents if the club honors were split, declarer played a heart to the king and called for a club.

Luckily for the defenders, East knew that one time to play second hand high is when a defender has one card left in partner's long suit, and declarer still has a stopper in that suit. Here, East played his club king.

When East held the trick, he returned his second spade, establishing his partner's suit while West still had the club ace as an entry.

2019 School Corporation Annual Performance Report (APR)

General Explanations

The APR is a report on the performance of schools and school corporations (districts) in your area. The goal is to provide information regarding the progress schools are making to help students become college-and–career ready. Where possible, this report contains three years of data to show trends – not just this year's results. In addition, the State Average is also shown for comparison purposes. There are additional indicators that are available on the Indiana Department of Education's Web site (compass.doe.in.gov), including data broken out by different student subgroups, such as race, gender, income level and special education.

Indiana educators and citizens have developed higher academic standards for all students. These standards are necessary to prepare Indiana students to be successful in life, whether they go directly to higher education or to the workplace. The scores for ILEARN/ISTEP+ are listed under each school to reflect student progress toward those standards. For high schools, you also will see graduation rates and the percentage of graduates who plan to go on to college.

Other important data are provided, such as average attendance rates and indicators of school safety, including expulsions and suspensions. Also included is information about your school corporation, such as how much is spent, on average, for each student; how much teachers are paid; and the percentage of corporation students who are in special education classes or gifted and talented classes.

Definitions (in the order found on the report)

Jake Detek debuts his professional music career in Madison

By CHARLIE ROHLFING

If you are a regular reader of Charlie's Beat, you know most of these columns focus on our homegrown musical talent. But because we have such a rich and vibrant live music culture in our town (a bit dormant at the moment with the virus, but soon to rise again) we also attract a wealth of itinerant musicians, often just passing through or living here short term.

Case in point is Jake Detek. I met Jake when he was playing a Thursday night gig at Off Broadway Taproom a few weeks ago. Jake is not a full-time Madison resident, but more on that in a moment. Thursday nights at the Taproom are focused more on solo and acoustic shows, as opposed to the full band shows on the weekends.

Taproom manager Ryan Shaw likes to use Thursdays to showcase artists who are ready to step up from the amateur ranks and take a swing in the minor leagues. "I can pay people a little bit," Ryan said, "and it gives them a chance to get on stage in front of an audience and hone their skills as a live musician."

Jake Detek fits perfectly into this mold. He's been a regular at the Tuesday open mic nights at the Taproom, taking his turn and playing a few songs, but Ryan could see he was ready to step up and do a complete show. Jake jumped at the chance.

"This Thursday show at the Taproom is the first time I've ever gotten paid to play, if you exclude playing for free drinks.," Jake said. "I've done that a few times at other places.

"I travel a lot with my job and I've found that just about every town has an open mic night going on if you just seek it out. I discovered the Taproom a while back and started coming, and then Ryan gave me a chance to play my own show. Davy Harmon has been very supportive, too, since I've been in Madison."

Jake Detek

Jake has an extremely interesting job that has him living for a few months at a time in different places all over the country. He's a Senior Field Engineer and Project Manager for General Electric Power.

"I work with a crew that does maintenance and repair on the big GE steam turbines that generate electricity in power plants all over the country," Jake said. "We're currently doing routine maintenance on the Ghent plant, so I'm living in my travel trailer over in Kentucky for the duration of the project.

"Projects usually take three or four months, and we work round the clock to get it done and back online as fast as possible. I work seven days a week, thirteen hours a day. With those kinds of hours, I need a creative outlet, so I seek out open mics wherever I go. I try to make it to the Taproom every Tuesday.

"But I tell you what, if I could pass on just one thought to your readers out there, I'd encourage everyone who has a passion for music and a couple of songs worked out, get out there and go for it. Start with the open mic night and see what happens.

"I have to say I wish I'd done it sooner," Jake said. "As far back as high school even, I knew I wanted to try music, but I was playing sports and being cool. I wish I hadn't put it off so long. It's been so rewarding and fun. I would hope other people would follow their dream and go for it! That's my little bit of advice."

Hot tip of the week

The live stream shows from several of our local musicians have been a lot of fun. Rusty Bladen is doing a series he calls the "Quarantine Live Stream" every night at 8:30. Search "Rusty Bladen Friends and Fans" on Facebook and you'll find links to the shows. Jimmy Davis is doing daily live streams on his page, too, at different times during the day. Go to his page for info. And if any of you who have seen a Bill Lancton show around town, you have probably seen Gene Markiewicz on drums. Gene is from Indy but he loves playing here in Madison whenever he can. Gene has a bunch of fun live stream videos recorded from his living room it looks like! Just search his name on Facebook and check it out.
